OPINION / editorials, lette

STAR-NEWS

William R. Applebee
Publisher

Patricia Burnett
Executive Editor

John D. Veenstra
General Manager

Lawrence Wilson
Editorial Page Editor

Thamas Osborn
Circulation Director

Jane Lee
Comptroller

Lester Wiltse
Production Director

Arcadia: Gilb, Young

We endorse the re-election of Arcadia City Council members Charles Gilb and Mary Young.

Two candidates are campaigning against them and the issues they raise are relevant ones, from the revitalization of the city's business district to providing bus shelters for Arcadia residents. Many of the concerns voiced by the opposing candidates are concerns we have heard from many quarters in Arcadia and they deserve serious consideration by the community and the council itself.

Both Charles Chivetta and Johanna A. M. Hofer have run without success for the office before; Hofer on three previous occasions. Those past results, coupled with the lack of any popular movement to unseat the incumbents, leads one to think that Arcadia has already made up its mind in this election.

Young, completing her first term on the council, has proven herself a capable, caring representative of Arcadia's residents, responsive to both their needs and their frustrations. We feel she served the city well as mayor last year and has learned enough of the workings of the council in her first term to be an effective force on that body throughout a second term.

Gilb has given 12 years of elected service to the city, and while his style is often bluntly outspoken, and his way of getting things done sometimes more personalized than formalized, he has contributed much to this community over the years and has a wealth of experience and abilities to draw upon in continuing to serve the people of Arcadia. — Reprinted from the Star-News' affiliate paper, the Arcadia Times.

A-4— MONDAY, APRIL 11, 1988

OPINION / editorials, lette

STAR-NEWS

William R. Applebee
Publisher

Patricia Burnett
Executive Editor

John D. Veenstra
General Manager

Lawrence Wilson
Editorial Page Editor

Thamas Osborn
Circulation Director

Jane Lee
Comptroller

Lester Wiltse
Production Director

Arcadia: Gilb, Young

We endorse the re-election of Arcadia City Council members Charles Gilb and Mary Young.

Two candidates are campaigning against them and the issues they raise are relevant ones, from the revitalization of the city's business district to providing bus shelters for Arcadia residents. Many of the concerns voiced by the opposing candidates are concerns we have heard from many quarters in Arcadia and they deserve serious consideration by the community and the council itself.

Both Charles Chivetta and Johanna A. M. Hofer have run without success for the office before; Hofer on three previous occasions. Those past results, coupled with the lack of any popular movement to unseat the incumbents, leads one to think that Arcadia has already made up its mind in this election.

Young, completing her first term on the council, has proven herself a capable, caring representative of Arcadia's residents, responsive to both their needs and their frustrations. We feel she served the city well as mayor last year and has learned enough of the workings of the council in her first term to be an effective force on that body throughout a second term.

Gilb has given 12 years of elected service to the city, and while his style is often bluntly outspoken, and his way of getting things done sometimes more personalized than formalized, he has contributed much to this community over the years and has a wealth of experience and abilities to draw upon in continuing to serve the people of Arcadia. — Reprinted from the Star-News' affiliate paper, the Arcadia Times.

OPINION / editorials, letters

STAR-NEWS

Arcadia: Glib, Young